

Caledonian College of Engineering raises RO 7,500 through Charity Fair

CALEDONIAN College of Engineering recently organised its annual Charity Fair.

The proceeds of the fair (RO 7,500) were presented to The National Association for Cancer Awareness in a ceremony held at the college.

Yuthar Mohammed al Rawahi, President and Founder of The National Association for Cancer Awareness, thanked the college, especially the students, for organising the fair. She said that the fair signified the students' sense of responsibility towards the society and the community at large.

Prof Frank McIntosh, Principal and Dean of the College, congratulated the student organisers and expressed immense pride in their contribution and efforts.

قشیر Certificates of appreciation were given to the sponsors, the students of the organising committee and the volunteers, including members of staff who supported the students to ensure the success of the fair.

Gamila al Balushi, representative of Vocational Society and Foreign Community Club Department, Ministry of Social Development, also attended the ceremony which concluded with a musical performance by the newly formed college band called 'Fusion'.
